- Integrate scenario-based simulations on the online platform, providing vulnerable adult learners with practical, immersive experiences to apply and refine their soft skills.
- Conduct specialized training session to empower educators in maximizing the impact of visual thinking techniques in their soft skills instruction.
- Implement a series of interactive challenges within the online platform to actively engage vulnerable adult learners in practical exercises that reinforce and apply soft skills in real-world contexts. This objective aims to enhance learners' proficiency and confidence in utilizing soft skills effectively.
- Conduct systematic assessments to measure the effectiveness of visual thinking in enhancing soft skills development for vulnerable adult learners. Use feedback and data to refine and optimize the visual tools and resources for maximum impact.

Highlights from the the first transnational meeting in Tallinn

Last month, we held our first face-to-face meeting with partners from Estonia (the coordinator), Croatia and the Netherlands. The meeting involved discussions on key project activities, dissemination, financial planning, and sustainability.

Partners also addressed project management, focusing heavily on defining the flow and structure of two main outputs: SkillVista platform and Visual methodology toolkit for adult educators working with vulnerable adults.

We also had the opportunity to observe daily practices used by EVPIT for soft skills development in intellectually disabled adults!

PARTNER PROFILES

Like any good child, the Estonian Support League for People with Mental Disabilities has several names - EVPIT, Support League or simply Vaimukad.

EVPIT is an association of organisations supporting people with mental disabilities, established in 1990. The support association is necessary for people with mental disabilities and their parents as a place to get independent information and services and a channel to communicate their problems to authorities. We represent Estonian organisations dealing with people with mental disabilities in global and European organizations and pan-Estonian organizations.

The Technology, Information and Resources (TIR) Consulting Group was founded on the belief in the rise of knowledge societies in the 21st century. We promote the societal benefits of knowledge and strive to create a fairer and more knowledgeable society through our 3Es principles: EMBRACE diversity, ENHANCE knowledge, and EMPOWER people. These principles guide our initiatives across the YOUTH, VET, and ADULT sectors.

UIF (Universal Interaction Foundation) promotes lifelong learning, focusing on social dynamics and human interaction. By teaching groups to interpret interaction styles and anticipate social cues, we help them present themselves as equals in various societal contexts. Our education programmes bridge the gap between academia and industry, supporting economic independence through employment or entrepreneurship.

What to expect next?

Currently, partners are identifying various visual aids that adult educators can use to enhance soft skills training for vulnerable adults. Next, we will begin focus groups with experts.
